

Aftermath Media Award

It's our pleasure to let you know that the Aftermath Media Award for 2015 was awarded to Jeremy Torrie for his film The Psychopath Next Door. This fascinating hour long film documents the impact of people with psychopathic traits on those around them.

Torrie's film provides a compelling but informative look at this particularly damaging personality disorder syndrome, including insights by experts who study and work with people with psychopathic traits.

The Aftermath Foundation Media Award is given by the Aftermath Foundation Board of Directors to honor those who produce works consistent with the Mission of the Foundation. This award recognizes outstanding contributions toward public education regarding the nature of psychopathy and its impact on victims and family members of psychopathic individuals.

What made The Psychopath Next Door so outstanding is that it is not about the violent or necessarily criminal psychopaths - rather, it focuses more on psychopathic individuals in personal and business relationships, with an emphasis on what to look for in their behavior as well as their negative impact on victims.

Another strong point of The Psychopath Next Door is that its entertaining and engaging artistic approach is balanced by current science and research, presented in an easy-to-understand style. The Psychopath Next Door is a strong piece that avoids the sensationalism, which often plagues other films on this topic.

The Psychopath Next Door will be airing again on Saturday, March 26, 2016 at 2 PM EST on CBC's the "Doc Zone".

You can watch a trailer for the film here.

Best wishes,
Dr. David Kosson, President of the Aftermath Foundation